WATERFORD.

A Corn Husking.
There was a husking at Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Kneeland's last Saturday night, and between 40 and 50 were present, and a number of the women went out and helped husk. After the corn was husked out, Mrs. Kneeland had the tables laden with food, which suited every one, and a very fine time was given. Next year we hope that Mr. Kneeland will have another one and a great deal more corn. I believe there were about 70 bushels of corn.

A Canadian Lynx.

One day the first of the week as John Lord of Albany came into his dooryard, he saw one of his best hounds conveyed from his premises in the jaws of an animal. Mr. Lord hastened into the house, procured a rifle which contained one shell and started out in pursuit. The animal jumped on a stone wall and with the only shot, the animal, which proved to be a Canadian lynx, fell dead.

It was brought to Norway and is to be mounted. It measured 4 feet 10 1/2 inches stretched out from toe to toe and weighed 20 pounds.

Five Parties To Be Voted For.

The names of five parties will be on the official ballot in this State in the national presidential election, which will take place November 4. The time for the filing of papers expired Monday, and the parties which will have a place on the official ballot are the Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Prohibitionist and Independence League. The first four parties were entitled to a place on the ballot because each of them cast one per cent. of the total vote in the last election while the Independence League went on the ballot by petition.

The local entertainers of Norway will present a vaudeville show and dance at Dunham's Hall, Saturday evening, Oct. 17. Music by Stearns orchestra. The singing is guaranteed to be good and the comedians funny.

Colds on the Chest

Ask your doctor the medical name for a cold on the chest. He will say, "Bronchitis." Ask him if it is ever serious. Lastly, ask him if he prescribes Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for this disease. Keep in close touch with your family physician.

We publish our formulas. We banish alcohol from our medicines. We urge you to consult your doctor.

Ayer's

When you tell your doctor about the bad taste in your mouth, loss of appetite for breakfast, and frequent headaches, and when he sees your coated tongue, he will say, "You are bilious." Ayer's Pills work well in such cases.

A Visit to Oxford County.

A hymn writer has said, "I've reached the land of corn and wine." I haven't done that, but it has been my privilege this season to reach the land of corn and potatoes and had I gone directly from one extreme to the other I should have traveled nearly 450 miles, for Aroostook county is the land of potatoes and Fryburg in Oxford county, the land of corn. Fryburg is 50 miles from Portland on the Mountain Division of the Maine Central, about 190 miles from Dover to the upper border of Aroostook county. The village is a beautiful place but has suffered considerably from fire, the large Oxford House and several fine dwellings having burned in 1906. Although the hotel and many of the dwellings have not been rebuilt, the greatest loss to the beauty of the village was the destruction of numerous magnificent elms which cannot be replaced for many generations. Several hundred dollars was paid a specialist who said he could save some that were scorched, but he failed.

There are many beautiful homes in the village, one being the summer home of Dr. S. C. Gordon, the well known Portland physician and surgeon, who was born in Fryburg and still takes great interest in his native place.

The friends where I visited live eight miles from the village so I had opportunity to see considerable of the town and it is one of the most beautiful I have ever seen. The land is so fertile that the farms need not be large, consequently the farm buildings are near together as they are in New Brunswick and other parts of Canada. There are a great many shade trees throughout the town, elms, maples, pines, etc., which add greatly to its beauty.

When Fryburg was first settled the Saco river was 30 miles long within its borders, and as the river overflowed its banks during the high water the greater part of the town could not be occupied. To remedy this a canal was dug early in the last century between two bends in the river with the result that the river is now but 24 miles long within the town and a great amount of valuable land was reclaimed.

Although the result of the canal was very satisfactory, I was told that it had been dug at a different place 2,000 acres of land that is now worthless would also have been reclaimed. At one time the width of three planks would cover the canal but the river has washed the banks away until now a bridge 175 feet long is required to cross it at one point. It is evident that much of the town was once the bed of a lake which became filled by wash from higher land. An old resident told me that when digging a well a large log was found several feet below the surface, and some distance below that the bed of a canal, which would indicate that the filling in was a long process. Some of the farms are underlaid with water which maintains the same level as the water in the river.

I have already said that the soil of Fryburg is very fertile. It is also natural corn land and that is made the leading crop by the farmers and is as much in evidence as potatoes are in Aroostook county. As I went through the town I could see sweet corn on all sides and in some places growing to the road as I saw potatoes growing in Aroostook county. The farmers are uniformly prosperous, and handsome and extensive sets of farm buildings are numerous. The farms not only produce large crops of corn but of hay, grain and potatoes.

The old bed of the Saco is encountered frequently and still contains a little water in many places. Its course is marked by elms and willows, the former being large and handsome.

Fryburg is in a pine region. A large amount has been cut but a great deal still remains. Since the timber has become so valuable the pines are being cared for and many groves are seen with the trees carefully trimmed.

One of the historic places in Fryburg is Lovewell's Pond, near which, Captain Lovewell with 33 soldiers met and defeated a body of Indians said to have numbered 80, commanded by Chief Paugus. It was a fierce battle and but nine soldiers escaped death or wounds and among the killed was Captain Lovewell. A handsome bronze tablet has been placed on a boulder to mark the spot and bears the names of the soldiers who were killed or died from their wounds.

Near the pond is a bluff of ledge called Jockey Cap. Why it was given that name I did not learn but probably because of its resemblance to a jockey's cap. A path around the side of the rock through the trees and bushes enables one to reach its top from which Fryburg village and the surrounding country, including Lovewell's Pond, can be seen. It is a beautiful view and well worth the climb.

I could not find from reading or inquiring how high Jockey Cap is. As I stood at the foot I thought it was 50 ft. and the friend with me thought it was 200. As we looked at it from a different spot I thought it was higher than my estimate and he not so high as his.

A legend connected with the hill says that an Indian girl watched the fight at the pond, from its top and when she saw her lover killed she jumped off and killed herself.

One thing in relation to Fryburg that I have not mentioned is the beautiful mountain scenery. A view can be had of a long range of mountains in Maine and New Hampshire and when conditions are favorable the White Mountains can be seen.

Fryburg Academy stands high among the schools in western Maine. Near the village is a fine trusting park with all buildings necessary for successful fairs. There is also a camp ground, where but a few years since Chautauqua assemblies were held.

The horse railway running between the village and the campground is one of the few remaining in the United States and so far as I know is the only one. The road is operated but a short time during the summer, only long enough to keep its charter alive. Some day the charter may be sold to an electric road.

Besides the visit to Lovewell's Pond and Jockey Cap we made a pleasant trip to Kezar Lake. The foot of the lake is in Stow, less than three miles from where I stayed in Fryburg, but the greater part of it must be in Lovell. It is nine miles long but not very wide, much narrower as a whole than Sebago Lake. A few farms come down to the water but the banks are generally covered with trees—pine, gray birch, maples, etc. There are a great many cottages on the shores, some owned by local people and many by people living in other states. There are several handsome summer homes in Lovell Center owned by residents of other states.

When these people began to build cottages on the lake the natives objected because they thought the summer visitors would catch their fish. Now, however, they are glad to have them come for their patronage contributes largely to the prosperity of Lovell, both of farmers and merchants.

One of the fine looking farms in Lovell that we passed was the boyhood home of Judge George W. Stearns of Millinocket, land agent for the 'Great Northern' Paper Company. The Stearnses have been among the leading families in Lovell for many years. Judge Stearns' father and another son still live on the farm.

Kezar river flows out of the lake into the Saco in North Fryburg. Charles river also flows into the Saco above the mouth of the former and level is the land in that vicinity that in high water the current of the Saco, reinforced by the Charles, forces the water in the Kezar back into the lake.

During my visit in Oxford county I drove from Fryburg to Sweden, the town where my father was born. The road to Lovell village is plain enough but from there into Sweden, four or five miles, a stranger needs a chart and a compass. Much of the latter distance is over a sandy plain with roads going in every direction and only occasional guideboards. A stranger will come to branch roads which fill him with dismay for he doesn't know which to take. It will make little difference, however, for one may be a short cut around a hill. A little later he will again come to two roads where he will reach a decision after some anxiety only to find that they come together a few rods on.

This multiplicity of roads comes from the ease with which they can be made, and there are cut-offs and sidetracks just as we have winter roads here. All this is thorough pine growth and much fine timber is still standing.

Sweden contains many good farms but the population is steadily growing smaller for although it is but seven miles to Bridgton and a railroad, church and school privileges are so lacking that families move away and no new ones come in. I visited the farm where one of my uncles lived and became well off although he brought up a large family. The buildings are on a hill from which the view is beyond my power of description, as mountains can be seen on all sides, but although there is a good brick house and other buildings they are unoccupied.

A little cemetery not far away recalled to my mind one of the many home tragedies of the Civil war for it contained the graves of the uncle whom I have mentioned and two of his sons, one 21 and the other 25 years old, who died in hospitals. During the sickness of one of the boys his father went to Washington to care for him. The father was a strong, able bodied man but he tried to do too much in the hospital and when he left it after the death of his son he was broken in body and mind and never recovered although he lived several years. Another soldier, cousin, a boy, is also buried in this cemetery.

Sweden was a loyal town, for notwithstanding its population was but 725 in 1890 it furnished 70 soldiers during the war, almost a tenth of its inhabitants.

The town contains a great quantity of valuable pine timber land. Within a few years several farmers found that they were well off far beyond their expectations because of their timber. Although the people in the town are deprived of many privileges they have the telephone and the R. F. D. and also have a prosperous Grange so that they seem to enjoy life.

This is the way Editor L. P. Evans of the Piscataquis County Observer tells of his summer trip to our county.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

GUARANTEED NEURALGIA CURE.

Neuralgic Anodyne Costs Nothing If It Fails to Cure.

Here is a plain, simple statement that should inspire immediate confidence in any one suffering with Neuralgia. If Neuralgic Anodyne fails to give quick relief and a complete cure in even the worst forms of neuralgic trouble, the money will be refunded.

This guarantee is made by the proprietors, The Twitchell-Chaplin Co., Portland, Me., who instruct dealers everywhere to sell the Anodyne in this way.

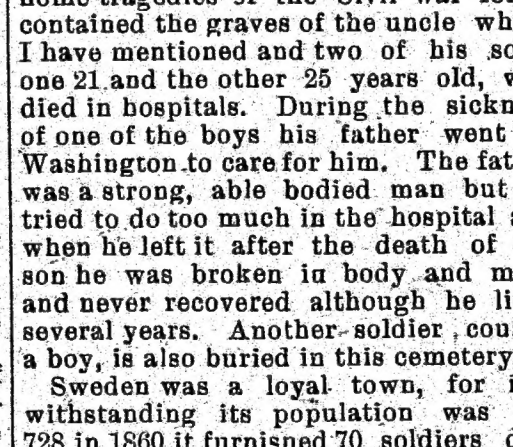

Nothing else equals Neuralgic Anodyne, because it gets right at the nerve centers with a small internal dose, and at the same time, by external application to the affected part, goes through the pores of the skin to the aching tissues, giving relief in from five to ten minutes.

Do not suffer longer with rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache, or any other ache, or pain, when you can buy a large-sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne for 25c with the agreement that it costs nothing unless it cures.
